Consent for Observation, Teacher Consultation, and Meeting with Child at LEAP

The University Parent Consultation and Child Evaluation Service (UPCCES) of the University of Maryland Counseling Center regularly consults with the parents, teachers, and administration of the Learning-Language Early Advantage Program (LEAP). The goal of the consultation, in the form of classroom observation and/or meetings with school personnel, is to assist the families and teachers in maximizing the children’s academic, social, and emotional functioning within the school setting. The overall goal is to reduce barriers to learning.

The undersigned individual agrees to allow UPCCES staff to consult in the following ways (please place a checkmark next to all services for which you are giving permission):

- ___ Observe the child in the school setting
- ___ Meet with the child
- ___ Meet with the teacher, school administrator, or other LEAP personnel to discuss the child’s current progress and functioning.

UPCCES complies with the ethical and legal state and federal guidelines in the protection of client privacy and information.
